Illustrative Retail Coverage Note — Post Earnings Review

Illustrative demo dataset only. Not an actual analyst report or investment recommendation.

Page 1 — Forecast Changes to Consider

Revenue: Management commentary supports a modestly higher FY27 revenue trajectory if store additions remain near the current plan. Review the FY27 revenue growth assumption of 8% and test sensitivity around a 9–10% range.

Margins: Management reiterated a base-case FY27 EBITDA margin of approximately 10.8%. The FY28 assumption of 11.7% may need review depending on promotional intensity and operating leverage.

Store rollout: The current model assumes 180 new stores in FY27 and 220 in FY28. Management's comments suggest the FY27 number could move higher if real estate availability remains favourable.

Page 2 — Investment Model Implications

Capex: The model should be checked against the stated FY27 planning level of approximately ■6 billion. A faster store rollout could increase capex and depreciation assumptions.

EPS: Any changes to revenue, EBITDA margin, capex, or depreciation should flow through to earnings and EPS rather than being treated as isolated line-item changes.

Key items to monitor: store additions, same-store sales momentum, digital commerce growth, promotional intensity, operating leverage, and capital intensity.

The purpose of this demo is to identify where a human analyst should investigate further, not to mechanically overwrite model values.
